DOINGS IN AND ABOUT TOWN.

Breezy Little Notes of General Interest Picked up Here and There.

Joe McKinney, of Thomas, was in the city last Tuesday.

A full line of Millinery Stock at T. T. Hunter's.

Howard C. Boone was in the valley on business this week.

More real estate is changing hands in Safford these days than in any town in the territory no larger.

Regular service will be held at the M. E. church next Sunday, preaching by Rev. Wm. Place.

The recent heavy rains have destroyed the warehouse of Hunt Brother's distillery at Pima. A larger one will be erected.

J. L. T. Watters, of Duncan, was a visitor in Safford last Tuesday. Mr. Watters informs us that he is an applicant for the Duncan school.

Ever since the death of Mr. Sullivan, Mrs. Sullivan and Mrs. French have been quite ill, being confined to their rooms most of the time.

Owing to several washouts on the railroad the train was delayed several days at Bowie and its liveryman had a good run of business in consequence.

Last week Dr. Porter received a new set of surgical instruments of the latest make. His old ones have been in use so many years that the doctor concluded that his practice demanded a new set.

J. T. Owens has just received his mammoth stock of dry goods which he is going to sell cheap for cash. Call at the Blue Store and examine the goods and convince yourself of their superiority.

A basket social will be held at the M. E. Church next Wednesday evening, good ice cream will be served at 15 cents a plate, and the mysteries of the baskets will be explored. A select program will be rendered.

Next Monday and Tuesday, Sep. 2d and 3d, are the days set for the quarterly teachers' examination to be held at Solomonville, at the Court House. Those teachers contemplating trying for a certificate should not forget the date.

The report that has been circulated that District Attorney Jones had died of hydrophobia is the rankest kind of rot. Mr. Jones is in Chicago and is all right. He will return home in about two weeks.

I have just received my fall and winter stock of men's and boy's ready made clothing that I will sell cheap for cash. I have 100 suits of all styles and patterns. Come quick and take your choice at J. T. Owens store, Safford, 8-16-17.

In another column will be found the new advertisement of C. F. Holmberg, of Thomas. Mr. Holmberg is a new arrival in our midst and deserves a share of the public patronage. He has his store well stocked with general merchandise and dress goods. Give him a call and you will receive courteous treatment.

Quite a number of people have been inquiring of late what caused the broad smile on Barney Palm's countenance ever since last Monday, and what is the reason his saloon is open no more after about 9 o'clock. The explanation is easy. It will be found in another column, under the head of marriages, and we extend our congratulations to the newly wedded couple.

Mr. L. Rosenstein, traveling in the interest of L. Zeckendorf & company, of Tucson left in a private conveyance for Bowie on Wednesday morning. Mr. Rosenstein has not been through here for some time and while here he spoke in pleasing terms of the progressive spirit of our merchants. He has many friends in our valley who are always pleased to see him. He will return again in about forty days.

At the dance in Jacobson's hall two weeks ago to-night, some mischievous persons, through pure cussedness, cut a large splinter out of the sill of one of the front windows of Mr. Jacobson's store; defacing the looks of the window. The same person also cut open a picture cabinet, belonging to J. D. Russell, which was fastened to the front of the store, and destroyed and carried off a number of photographs. Mr. Jacobson and Mr. Russell are offering a reward of $10 each, for the apprehension of the culprit.

BIRTHS.

MAY.—On Aug. 29th, to the wife of O. C. May, of Safford a daughter.

SHOT DOWN.

C. E. Holladay Shot and Probably Fatally Wounded by Jontie Hunt at Pima Last Evening.

HUNT SURRENDERS HIMSELF.

The Deplorable Affair Caused by a Quarrel Over a Dog.

Word reached us late last night that C. E. Holladay was shot and probably mortally wounded by Jontie Hunt at the distillery, at Pima, about 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

It seems that Holladay had a dog with him which Hunt undertook to drive away by slapping him. This aroused Holladay who, it is said abused Hunt in regular frontier style, which caused Hunt to throw a rock at Holladay which missed him. Holladay then commenced searching for a rock, and when he was stooping over to pick it up Hunt drew a 45 calibre six shooter and shot him, the ball entering through the shoulder blade, ranging downward, but it did not come out. At last accounts Holladay was still alive.

After the shooting Hunt dropped the gun, hunted up an officer and surrendered himself.

LAST Tuesday was the day set for the sale of Territorial bonds, and $385,000 were placed upon the market. While there as yet has been no award there were three bidders, and the probabilities are that the bonds will be sold. The lowest bidder was D. Van & Co., Los Angeles, their bid being par, with accrued interest and 3 1/4 per cent premium. W. J. Hayes & Co. and S. A. Kean were also bidders.

The tax levy has been fixed by the Board of Supervisors in Pima county at $3.25.

ARIZONA.

Many Bright Sides to Life in that Rich Territory.

In an article on Arizona the Chicago Inter-Ocean says:

It long was an article of belief among miners that Arizona was productive only of surface gold, and that no "deep workings" could be developed in its limits. Experience has brought knowledge; Arizona is full of "deep workings" and it is not improbable that the Arizona gold mines may equal those of Africa.

A second result has been the development of agriculture for supply of the mining industries. And here again Arizona has vindicated herself against its calumniators. The territory has been described as an untillable waste of rock and sand, but irrigation has made parts of it as productive as the famous valley of the Nile. Another, though perhaps a minor, result has been the discovery of the fitness of the territory as a sanitarium for convalescents and for the nervously exhausted. There is little doubt that Arizona possesses the finest winter climate in the world, as warm as that of New Orleans, but less humid, as bracing as that of southern California, and free from the afternoon fogs of the coast line; as equable as Florida, but free from the malaria that infest parts of Florida.

Copper is King.

Copper yesterday reached the highest point it has yet attained since the reaction, $12.30, an advance of $3 within the last three months. The rise has been steady and prospectors in the vicinity of Tucson have already begun to take advantage of it. Within a very short time the Tucson Smelting company has allowed an advance to its patrons from $1.45 a unit to $1.70 a unit on say 20 per cent ore. The present quotation of $12.30 is equivalent to about $1.90 a unit, so that the advance to patrons within the last ten days or two weeks is nearly $9 a ton, or say about 33 1/2 per cent, a sufficient inducement to create activity in the copper mines.

It is said that in the territory tributary to Tucson, there are now ten mines working to one a month ago. A mining man speaking of the outlook said yesterday that there are within a radius of 30 miles of Tucson not less than 1,000 locations, everyone of which can be profitably developed and operated at even the present price.

But it is a dead certainty that the price cannot recede, but it is bound for several reasons to advance steadily until at least the $20 mark is reached. In the first place quotations show that there has been in the last year a falling off in production in the United States of 50,000 tons. The demand for copper is greater than it has been before and it will necessarily increase. The present increase in demand comes from the additional and growing use of copper wire for electrical purposes.

These are given by financial papers as the chief reasons for the advance, but there is another which has sprung up too recently to have been taken into consideration. It is the late re-discovery of a process for welding copper with other metals. A variety of new uses of copper is thus brought into existence and it is estimated that the consumption will be increased by 50 per cent.

Such a condition of affairs will bring to Tucson along with all copper mining centers greater prosperity than it has ever known.—Star

Turned Over.

One week ago last Friday as Judge Hornmeyer and Hon. A. D. Brewer were coming from Morenci to Clifton they came near having a very serious accident. As they made the turn to descend the steep and dangerous dug-way leading in to Chase creek, the vehicle was overturned and Judge Hornmeyer was caught beneath the wagon and badly bruised. The team they were driving were gentle and responded when told to stop, otherwise Mr. Hornmeyer would have never told the story. The accident was caused by the recent rains making the ground wet and slippery.

The Judge was in the valley this week, his discolored face indicates that the fall was a violent one.

The board of trustees for the Safford school district has selected teachers for the present school year. Judge J. M. McCollum has been employed to take charge of the grammar department and Miss Kitty Tuttle will be in charge of the primary department. The selection is a good one. Judge McCollum is an old teacher, having spent a great deal of time in the school room, while Miss Tuttle's success in the primary department is beyond question. She is a very studious young lady, and has carefully studied school tactics and management.

PASSING EVENTS OF THE WEEK.

Happenings Throughout the Territory Edited With the Scissors.

A new enterprise, one that is badly needed, is about to be started in this city, which will fill the traditional long felt want. It is a mining agency which proposes to bring the mine owner and the moneyed man together for their mutual benefit.—Herald.

Dense columns of smoke have lately been observed arising from the Colima volcano, Sonora, and subterranean commotions noted in the vicinity lead to the belief that another eruption is close at hand.—Prospector.

A Nogales merchant is advertising his stock, which consists in part of coffins and other habiliments of the grave, at cost. This sinful world must possess some attraction for the man who willfully refuses to embrace this auspicious time and unparalleled opportunity to die.—Star

Word comes from Lynk creek that Sunday last, about sundown, Mrs. Henderson, who commenced to act strangely, left home on foot. Parties followed and found her about dark, but she refused to return and in some manner got away from them and had not been heard of yesterday morning. Our informant states that there were five little children at Mrs. Henderson's home, when she left, all crying for their mother. It seems to be a very sad affair.—Courier.

Weather Observer Burrows ran across a peculiar phenomenon this morning. When he reached his office he found his chronometer, which had run steadily for ten years had stopped. He then looked at his alarm clock which had also stopped as had also his watch. The climax was reached when he asked the office boy what time it was and received the reply that his watch had stopped. The correct time will be received from Washington to day and the clocks and watches again started up.—Herald.

The El Paso Tribune says that the Liberal is printed in Silver City. In compliance with the latest fashion set by El Paso journalists the Liberal gives notice to the editor of the Tribune that if he does not, within ninety days, retract, apologize and give the source of information of this foul slander, it will publish him as a liar, a blackmailer and a villain, and will tell the public all about where he was and what he did during the four years previous to the discovery of America by the late lamented Sr. C. Columbus.—Lordsburg Liberal.

The celebrated John Wesley Hardin, the well known Texas killer, the man who banked on his ability to draw quick and shoot straight and fast, met a man in an El Paso saloon last Monday night who was something of a killer himself. John Sellman and Hardin had a dispute in the Acme saloon, which threatened to lead to a shooting. Sellman went out and waited for Hardin, who did not come out. A couple of hours later Sellman, went in to get a drink. He found Hardin at the bar. Hardin made a suspicious motion and in "self defence" Sellman commenced shooting. He took no chances with the iron shirt Hardin was reported to wear and took his first shot at the head, hitting him in the eye, killing him instantly. Before Hardin's body reached the ground Sellman shot three more times, two of the shots taking effect.—Liberal.

The Santa Fe railroad company has arranged a special rate of $50 from Deming or El Paso to Salt Lake City and return, to and including Oct. 20th. Tickets for sale at Deming and El Paso on Sept. 30th and Oct. 1st.

This rate has been given to enable those wishing to attend the October conference of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints an opportunity to go. Tickets will be issued in time to reach Salt Lake by Oct. 3d, when there will commence and continue till the 4th a Welch Musical Festival, known as the "Eistedfodd" in the tabernacle and prizes aggregating several thousand dollars have been offered for the best choir or other musical competition. For further particulars write to E. Copland, general agent, El Paso.

E. A. Catter was in Solomonville last Monday, he having business with the Board of Equalization.

Irrigation Congress.

PHENIX, ARIZONA, AUG. 22, 1895.

To the Citizens of Arizona:—The Fourth National Irrigation Congress will meet at Albuquerque September 16-20. In its session, Arizona's without exception should feel the keenest interest, and we ask your co-operation to the end that from Arizona shall go a full and energetic delegation of public-spirited citizens, to place most clearly and emphatically before the Congress the needs and desires of the Territory.

In no other portion of the Union has irrigation so broad a scope as in Arizona. Here, now are being worked out problems that before many years will be solved, that millions of acres of fertile, arid land shall be redeemed and shall be filled with every evidence of intelligent husbandry. In irrigation development lies Arizona's active and intelligent work.

To the end that unity of action be secured and that definite plans be formulated for the work that lies before us at the Congress, it has been agreed upon as advisable that a caucus of the qualified Arizona delegates be held at Phoenix September 2. At this caucus is also cordially invited the attendance of all representatives of the press and of all irrigation, mining, transportation, manufacturing or commercial enterprises, that the common purpose of Arizona's advancement may be the better served.

It is therefore asked that all delegates be at once appointed. Those yet to be chosen within Arizona comprise: "One delegate each from regularly organized irrigation, agricultural or horticultural societies and from societies of engineers, irrigation companies, agricultural colleges and commercial bodies."

The Territorial delegates at large would be pleased to receive suggestions and expressions of opinion as to the matter that should be brought to the attention of Congress, and trust that every section of the territory may be represented at the meeting in Phoenix September 2. (Signed) A. J. Doran, Jas. A. Fleming, Jas. H. McClintock, Territorial Delegates at Large.

A Growing Industry.

The managers of the irrigation congress to meet next month in Albuquerque, have the following to say about a great and growing industry in Arizona and New Mexico:

It is gratifying to learn that the experiments made in the last few years at the agricultural colleges of New Mexico and Arizona on the cultivation of the wild cannaigre are beginning to have good results. These experiments demonstrate that the wild root will respond to intelligent cultivation to a surprising degree. There can be no doubt that from ten to twenty tons can be grown to the acre, and that the demand will far exceed the supply for many years, if not for all time, and that the price will remain where it is or advance to a more profitable figure. It will take 90,000 tons of cannaigre to take the place of the imported gambier in the United States alone.

Nearly all the wild cannaigre that has gone to market up to date has gone to foreign countries. From January 31, 1891, to October 31, 1892, a period of twenty-one months the Southern Pacific railroad company handled 370 cars of the sliced and dried root consigned to Europe, which was probably more than was consumed in the United States in the same length of time. In addition to the shipment of the sliced and dried root the extract works at Deming have been running full time and sending the products of this factory to eastern tanners and abroad. Six dollars a ton is the market price for the wild green root from the hands of the diggers, while the sliced dried root bring $40 per ton in Glasgow. The supply of wild root within reasonable distance of lines of transportation will hardly last two years, but the farmers of the arid region are alive to the fact that a new and profitable farm crop has been brought forth, which promises to exceed in value all the crops grown in the arid region, requiring less water for irrigation, less hard and expensive labor to produce and market, less liable to damage from excessive drought, wet, cold or heat, than the average farm crop, and prospectively more profitable.

A New Toothache Cure.

A few days ago one of Thather's belles obtained a box of corn salve from the Safford Drug Co. After applying it as directed the corn was promptly removed root and branch. The young lady was so pleased with results that she took the box to her mother, who was suffering from an excruciating toothache and advised her to apply it to the tooth with the hope that it would remove the tooth. We are informed that the tooth came out with a jerk, but of course we cannot vouch for the accuracy of this.

A Letter From a son.

EDITOR GUARDIAN:—Thinking that a letter from these far off Islands might prove of interest to your readers I send you a few lines descriptive of the people and place.

The people here are of a copper color with black eyes and hair. The men are strong, lusty fellows, capable of doing good work, which they do when necessity presses. In carrying their food from the mountains they will often sustain a burden of from 125 to 175 pounds for a great distance. A meal for a family costs but little and is prepared in this way: Rocks about the size of hen's eggs are heated and the food placed upon them, (fish, etc. is wrapped in leaves,) and the whole is covered with a thick layer of leaves to keep in the steam, and allowed to remain for an hour or two. The preparations for a meal generally take from two to three hours, for the simple reason that they keep nothing on hand, and when hungry they have to gather everything from the bush. They have no system and keep nothing on hand for the future, consequently they are often in rather straightened circumstances and are compelled to live on half fare. What you say, live on half fare in a land so fertile and blessed with the copious rains of heaven? Yes; live on half fare and go to bed with an empty stomach, where, with a little forethought and less work, everything might be had within a few rods of the door. I have had my enduring qualities tested once or twice and am prepared to testify that a native can go without food longer than anyone I ever saw.

When partaking of their humble meal they sit crosslegged on the ground and eat with their fingers, sometimes playfully moulding the food in their hands and dipping it in soup, then conveying it to their mouths with a violent suction, that sounds, as near as I can convey it on paper, Z-Z-Z-o-o-o, if you pronounce it with an inward motion of the breath. Of course we have to eat as the natives do, only we endeavor to avoid the suction. As we take notice of the surroundings and dress of the people we are reminded very forcibly that:

The natives of tropical climes, Where the favors of nature abound, Wear very few clothes; As everyone knows They are summer girls all the year round.

The natives here bathe frequently and as a general rule keep their bodies clean. Tattooing from the waist to the knees is practiced by this people, but in some villages, through the influence of the missionaries, it is forbidden, but all a young man does is to go into another town where he willingly undergoes the severe ordeal for the sake of being a man, as he terms it. For until he is tattooed he is called a "tama ititi", or little boy. They also have a custom of putting lime on their heads one day in each week. This answers a twofold purpose by turning the hair red, which is greatly admired by them, and destroying vermin.

Page after page could be written about this people, their habits and customs. The GUARDIAN reaches me all right, and I consider it a valuable addition to Graham county.

Yours truly,

FOSTER CLUFF.

The Floods.

The rainfall this season has been heavier than in any previous year since 1881 and the prospect for more is good and the outlook for fall and winter grazing on the range is splendid.

The Cienega sand wash carried a larger volume of water than was ever before known. The Lone Star school house, located just south of the wash, and which is built on ground two feet higher than the floods were ever known to reach was in danger last Saturday, as the water stood about five inches deep around the house.

The water that came down Main street washed gullies out for the distance of a mile and surrounded the Groesbeck hotel so that it was almost impossible to reach the house. It also filled the large cellar underneath the co-op mill, and there were apprehensions that the building would settle and render it useless.

The storms seem to be general and washouts have been of almost daily occurrence along the line of the valley railroad, and the wagon road has become so soft that it is very difficult travelling. Edw. D. Tuttle met with a very painful accident last week. He was mowing hay in his field, and when he stopped to oil the machine, the team started, drawing the machine onto his foot and it then slid off, taking the big toe nail with it. Mr. Tuttle has not been laid up with it but he says it hurts like the deuce.
